OVERVIEW

1. Like tax levy programs, reimbursable programs collapse minor OTPS object codes into major groupings for budgetary purposes.
2. When actually purchasing supplies, materials, equipment, books or services, please consult the Standard Operating Procedures Manual (SOPM) to ensure compliance with such issues as bids, contracts, or necessary resolutions.
3. OTPS object codes that are not allowed by the funding source should not be budgeted.
4. Use object code 130 for Instructional Supplies and object code 198 for General Office and other non-instructional Supplies respectively.
5. Data Processing Software is budgeted in object code 198, except for Educational or Instructional Software, which is budgeted in object code 199. NYSLIB software is budgeted and charged to object code 338.
6. Any Equipment paid under an object code in the 300 series, which has a unit value under $250 Tax Levy or under $5,000 in Reimbursable should be budgeted in object code 100.
7. Object code 331, Computer Equipment, is to be used for reimbursable expenditures only with unit values under $5,000. Object code 331 collapses to object code 100. Object 332 is for reimbursable expenditures of at least $5,000 and tax levy expenditures over $250. Object code 332 collapses to object code 300.
8. Use object code 412 (Rental and/or Leasing of Miscellaneous Equipment), 413 (Rental and/or Leasing of Information Technology [data processing] Equipment), and 433 (Leasing and Rental of Copying and Duplicating Equipment).
9. Use detailed object codes for 451 and 452 for all eligible expenditures for Local Travel which collapse into the 451 series.
10. Use detailed object codes for 489 for all eligible expenditures for Parent Participation Activities which collapse into the 400 series.
11. Use new detailed object codes for 622 for all eligible expenditures for temporary services activities which collapse into the 622 series.
12. Most individual object codes collapse to the major series number for budgeting purposes. These major series object codes are 100, 300, 400, 600 and 700 (no items are to be encumbered or expensed against codes 100, 300, 400, 600 and 700). Additional object codes, which must be budgeted and do not collapse, include codes 110, 199, 337, 338, 402, 600, and most 700 series object codes; however, encumbrances and expenses may be charged to these codes.

For accounting purposes, the detailed object codes must be used when recording expenses. Therefore, all purchase orders, requisitions, imprest funds/(SIPP), change notices, etc., must include the proper object code to be charged (e.g., if funds are budgeted in object code 100, a purchase order for staplers should indicate object code 198 - General Office Supplies, and not 100).

Note: Differences in dollar thresholds for tax levy and reimbursable funded equipment (i.e., $250 and $5,000 respectively) are due to funding source regulations.
